

Rolling Green Golf Club Announces Scott Chisholm as New Head Golf Professional

Springfield, PA, January 2, 2018 – The private, member-owned Rolling Green Golf Club, proudly announces the hiring of Scott Chisholm as their new head golf professional.

Chisholm brings over 10 years of experience as an assistant professional at other exclusive private clubs. Most recently, he spent the past five years at the highly acclaimed Baltusrol Golf Club, home to the 2016 PGA Championship. There he was awarded the New Jersey PGA Player Development award in 2017.

During the interview process, Scott got a chance to play the course and instantly knew Rolling Green was a classic. “I told the guys on the committee and members of my club, honestly, this is one of the top-10 courses I’ve ever played.”

The new head golf professional says he “wants to continue to make the membership experience one of the best in the region.” He also wants to “provide an instructional program to match the quality of the beautiful golf course.” Scott will offer a variety of different teaching programs and clinics for members of all experience levels.

Prior to Baltusrol, Scott thrived at Plainfield Country Club which was the host of the 2011 Barclays. His teaching ranged from complete beginners to experienced touring professionals. Scott is a Class A PGA Professional, Level III AimPoint Instructor, BioSwing Dynamics Certified, NG360 Movement Specialist, Edel Master Fitter, Flatstick Certified Putting Coach and Operation36 Junior Golf Developer.

Golf Digest has recently named Scott on their “Best Young Teachers in America” list and also received the “Best Teachers by State” for New Jersey in 2017. He continues to play tournament golf by competing in various PGA events and served on the NJPGA Board of Directors. Scott has won seven NJPGA events since turning professional and in 2009 captured the NJPGA Pro-Scratch after a career tournament low 65.
